INDEX.

PLATES.

I. Contains the Assyrian Canon, or List of Eponymes; a Chronological Table, restored as far as possible from four incomplete Copies, and variant readings for the Names supplied from other sources. This important Document presents us with a continuous succession of eponymes for 228 years, or from B.C. 893 to B.C. 666 (the precise Dates being determined by the Record of a Solar Eclipse at Nineveh in June, B.C. 763, see Vol. II, Plate LII, Line 7), and there are some 20 other Names of which the position is doubtful, both at the beginning and end, the Canon coming down as late as B.C. 640 and possibly later.

II. Contains Fragments, of Tablets, belonging to the Reigns of Sargon, Sennacherib, Esarhaddon, and Assur-bani-pal, and bearing the equivalent Date of the Name of the Eponyme and the King's Regnal Year. These equivalent Dates are of great importance for the verification of the Canon, and they further show incidentally, in the case of Sargon, that he used a double Era; dating from B.C. 722, as King of Assyria, and from B.C. 710, as King of Babylon. Several of the imperfect Dates have since been completed.

III. Contains Fragments of Inscriptions on Votive Clay Dishes found at Kouyunjik and Sheref-khan. They are of various Dates from B.C. 1300 to B.C. 700.

Nos. 1 and 2 are doubtful.

Nos. 3, 4 and 5 are probably Fragments of Shalmaneser I, cir. B.C. 1300.

Nos. 6, 7 and 8 are of Assur-ris-ilim, B.C. 1140.

Nos. 9 and 11 belong to a King now first identified, Samsi-Bin, son of Tiglath Pileser I, cir. B.C. 1075.

No. 10 belongs to Assur-izzir-pal, B.C. 884—859. All these (1 to 11 inclusive) refer to the successive Repairs of the Temple of the principal Goddess of Nineveh, which had been founded by Samsi-Bin (the high priest?) in the 19th Century, B.C.

No. 12 belongs to Sargon, B.C. 722—705, and refers to the Rebuilding of the Temple of Nabu and Maruduk (see Vol. I, Plate VI, No. 7). It gives the Phonetic Reading of Bin-nirari for the name of the King under whom the Assyrian Canon commenced in B.C. 909.

No. 13 belongs to Sennacherib B.C. 705—681, and refers to the Building of the Temple of Nergal at Tarbizi (Sheref-khan) see Vol. I, Plate VII, C. and D.

IV. Contains 8 Miscellaneous Historical Inscriptions of various Dates.

No. 1, which is copied from the broken Obelisk of Assur-izzir-pal (?) about B.C. 875 (see Vol. I, Plate XXVIII) refers to the Campaigns of an earlier King (probably Tiglath Pileser I, cir. B.C. 1120). At any rate this King must be earlier than the commencement of the Canon in B.C. 909.

No. 2 is a Copy of the famous Signet Seal of Tugulti-Masu, son of Shalmaneser I, taken to Babylon in about B.C. 1300 and brought back by Sennacherib in about B.C. 700 (compare Vol. I, Plate XXXV, No. 3, Line 20).

No. 3 is a Fragment of the Synchronous Tablet of Babylonian and Assyrian History, published in Vol. II, Plate LXV, No. 1. This Fragment refers to a period of History about B.C. 1200.

No. 4 refers to the Wars of Sennacherib with Merodach-Baladan and his successor, Suzub, cir. B.C. 690.

No. 5 is a Fragment of a Letter from Binu-sum-izzir, King of Babylonia, to Assur-narara and Nabu-dahan, Kings of Assyria.

No. 6 is the Commemorative Tablet of Tiglath Pileser I, engraved at the sources of the Tigris, cir. B.C. 1110, as described in the Annals of Assur-izzir-pal, Vol. I, Plate XIX, Line 105. The inscription of the last-named King at the same spot is too much mutilated to be worth publishing, and that of his Father, Tugulti-Masu II, is entirely lost.

No. 7 is a curious Autobiographic Notice of Sargina I, King of Agana (near Sippara) and dating probably from the heroic times, compare Vol. II, Plate XXXIX, Line 41—Plate XLVIII, Line 40, and Plate L, Line 64.

No. 8 is the Legend on the Statue of Assur-izzir-pal in the British Museum, dating cir. B.C. 870—860.

PLATES.

V. Contains 6 Fragments, 5 of them of the age of Tiglath-Pileser I (12th Century B.C.), two of which, Nos. 4 and 5, probably belong to his Father, Assur-ris-ilim, as they refer to the Repairs of the Temple of the Goddess of Nineveh, which was founded by Samsi-bin, cir. B.C. 1820 (No. 5, Line 58) repaired by Assur-vapallid, cir. B.C. 1420 (No. 5, Line 60; and Plate III, No. 3, Line 7), again repaired by Shalmaneser I, cir. B.C. 1320 (No. 5, Line 61; and Sheet 3, No. 6, Line 20) and again by Assur-ris-ilim (Plate III, Nos. 6 to 8).

No. 6 is an Extract from the Annals of Shalmaneser II, giving Details of his War with Hazael of Syria, and Receipt of Tribute from Tyre, Sidon and Jehu of Samaria, in B.C. 842.

VI. Contains an amplified Notice of the Annals of Assur-izzir-pal for his 4th year, B.C. 880 (compare Vol. I, Plate XXI, Line 51, for an Account of the History of the same period), but the events are somewhat differently narrated. This Inscription is from a Monolith found in the Ruins of Kurkh on the Tigris, 20 miles below Diyarbekir, and now in the British Museum.

VII, VIII. Contain the Inscription on a Monolith also found in the Ruins of Kurkh and now in the British Museum. This Inscription relates the Campaigns of the early years of the reign of Shalmaneser II, varying from and amplifying the details on the Nimrud Obelisk and Bulls. Thus the Capture of Ahuni, son of Adini, is put by the Nimrud Obelisk in the Eponymy of Dayan-Assur, B.C. 854 (Layard's Insc., Plate LXXXIX, Lines 45—50) but by this Monolith in the Eponymy of Assur-banai-uzur, B.C. 856 (Plate VIII (Lines 69—75). There is an important passage in Plate VIII, Lines 91—92, which names Ahab of Israel (or Jezreel) among the 12 Kings of Syria, confederate with Ben-hadad against the Assyrians. This Campaign is stated (Line 78) to have taken place in the Eponymy of Dayan-Assur, B.C. 854.

IX, X. Contain 6 Fragments of the Annals of Tiglath-Pileser II, copied from Paper Casts in the British Museum, of the Broken Sculptures in the S.W. Palace at Nimrud. Plate IX, No. 3, is a more complete Copy of the Inscription, printed in Layard's Insc., Plate LXV and L. The Inscriptions are valuable from the record of the name of Azariah of Judah, Plate IX, No. 2, Lines 2, 3, and 10, and No. 3, Lines 23 and 31; and those of Pekah and Hoshea, Plate X, No. 2, Line 28. The Date of the former Notice is about B.C. 739, and of the latter about B.C. 730.

XI. Is the Inscription on the Monolith of Sargon found at Idalium in Cyprus and now in the Berlin Museum. The Edges of the Stone have been cut off, but the writing is completed as far as possible from the Standard Inscription of Khorsabad.

XII, XIII. Contain the Historical Inscriptions from the Koyunjik Bulls, Mr. Layard's copy of which first led, in 1851, to the identification of the names of Sennacherib and Hezekiah, and the discovery of the true age of the Nineveh Scriptures. The opening Campaigns of the Reign of Sennacherib are described in more detail on the Cylinder, Vol. I, Plate XXXVII to XLII; but there is some additional matter in this Inscription (in the 6th Campaign) and as the original Slabs have been sawn off the Koyunjik Bulls and are now deposited in the British Museum, it has been thought proper to print as complete a Copy of the Text as can be supplied.

XIV. Contains a Copy of the Inscription of Sennacherib on the Rock at Bavian, N.E. of Mosul, restored as far as possible from a comparison of the three Tablets which all bore the same Legend. The great value of this Inscription consists in the Notice which it contains, Line 50, of the period of 418 years intervening between the age of Sennacherib and of Tiglath-Pileser I.

XV, XVI. Contain 1st.—Fragments of the Annals of Esarhaddon copied from the lower half of a broken Hexagonal Cylinder, now in the British Museum. This Inscription was published in Layard's Insc., Plate LIV to LVIII, but the Text, as there given, is too corrupt and doubtful to be of much use to Students. A fresh Transcript has therefore been carefully made from the Cylinder, and where possible, the Text has been restored from the more perfect Esarhaddon Cylinder (Vol. I, Plate XLV to XLVII) which describes, though in a more condensed form, the same Campaigns. The most important additions are the Names and Cities of the 8 Kings and Queens of Arabia, Col. 4, Line 19, Sqq., and the List of the 22 Kings of Syria and Cyprus (including Manasseh of Judah) which had been previously published in Vol. I, Plate 48, No. I.

PLATES.

XV, XVI. 2nd.—(Plate XVI, No. 2) a curious Tablet of Shirua-eterat, a Daughter of Assur-ebil-ili, and Granddaughter of Assur-bani-pal. No. 3, a Tablet of Sennacherib bequeathing certain property to his Son, Esarhaddon. No. 4, a Fragment of Assur-bani-pal dedicating to Ishtar the weapon with which Temin-umman, King of Susiana, was executed? and No. 5, the Inscription on a Barrel Cylinder of Assur-bani-pal (now in the collection at the Louvre) relative to the Installation of his Brother, Saül-mugina (Saosduchinus) as King of Babylon.

XVII–XXVI. Contain the Text of the Decagon Cylinder of Assur-bani-pal, found in the Northern Palace at Koyunjik and now in the British Museum. This Cylinder was perfect when first discovered, but broke into fragments in transit to England, and has since crumbled so much that a considerable portion of the Writing has been altogether lost. The Text has been partially restored from Fragments of other Cylinders and Tablets containing the same Narrative; and further Restorations can be now made by the aid of Fragments which have come to light since the Text was printed. The Annals extend from the year B.C. 668, when Assur-bani-pal was placed on the Throne during the lifetime of his Father, Esarhaddon, to about B.C. 655. The principal Contents are:—

The Introduction, giving an Account of the Accession of Assur-bani-pal, Plate XVII, Lines 1 to 50.

The First Egyptian War, against Tirhakeh, Plate XVII, Lines 51 to 122.

The Revolt of the district Kings of Egypt, Plate XVII, Line 123 to Plate XVIII, Line 60.

The Second Egyptian War, against Urdamané, Plate XVIII, Lines 61 to 86.

The Conquest of Tyre, Plate XVIII, Lines 87 to 101.

Tribute from various Kings including Gyges, of Lydia, Plate XVIII, Line 101 to Plate XIX, Line 25.

The Revolt of Gyges and (𒈗 𒀀𒈾 𒌷 𒈾 𒂗𒂗𒈬 𒆳𒂍 (𒄑) 𒁀 𒁀 𒆳𒂍) Pisamilki (King) of Muzur or Egypt (Psammetichus?),* &c., Plate XIX, Lines 26 to 42.

The Campaign against Minni, Plate XIX, Lines 43 to 82.

The Conquest of Temin-umman, King of Elam, Plate XIX, Line 83 to Plate XX, Line 5.

The War with Saül-mugina (Brother of Assur-bani-pal) and his Allies, Plate XX, Line 6 to Plate XXI, Line 43.

The First War with Umman-aldas, King of Elam, Plate XXI, Lines 44 to 117.

The Second War with Umman-aldas, Plate XXI, Line 118 to Plate XXIII, Line 96.

The War with Arabia, Plate XXIII, Line 87 to Plate XXV, Line 114.

The Capture of Umman-aldas, Plate XXV, Line 115 to Plate XXVI, Line 21.

Embassy from Asha-dur (?), King of Armenia, Plate XXVI, Lines 22 to 30.

Repair of the Palace of Sennacherib at Nineveh, Plate XXVI, Line 31 to end.

XXVII. Contains Portions of the Introduction to the Annals of Assur-bani-pal from Fragments of other Cylinders, together with a Duplicate List (imperfect) of the Syrian Provinces subject to Assyria, and the Names of 7 of the Tributary Greek and Phœnician Kings of Cyprus (compare Vol. I, Plate XLIII).

XXVIII, XXIX. Contain a Narrative from Independent Tablets of the Egyptian Campaigns of Assur-bani-pal against Tarakú (Tirhakeh) King of Æthiopia, and his Nephew and Successor, Urdamané (Rud-ammon) together with two additional Fragments, one relating to Esarhaddon's previous Subjugation of Egypt, the other to the Death of Tirhakeh.

XXX–XXXIV. Contain Fragments of a Copy of the Annals of Assur-bani-pal, from a broken Octagon Cylinder of that King also in the British Museum. The Text of this Cylinder differs from the Decagon in several particulars. 1st. It omits the Notice of the Revolt of Gyges, &c. 2nd. It introduces an expedition (to Karbat) between the Notice of Gyges and the War with Minni. 3rd. It introduces a Campaign against Urtak, King of Elam, between the War with Minni and the Defeat of Temin-umman, and it adds several particulars relating to the early Elamite Wars. 4th. It divides the Conquest of Gambul from the War with Temin-umman, making it a separate Campaign. In Plate XXXIV there is a Fragment of a Third Cylinder referring to the War in Arabia, and the Dates of the several Documents.

* This Name is wrongly Printed in Col. III, Line 28.

PLATES.

XXXV-XXXVII. Contain Additional Fragments and Inscriptions relating to Assur-bani-pal.

XXXV. Contains Nos. 1 and 2. Fragments relating to the Recovery of the Image of the Goddess, Nana, from Susa, after its Disappearance for 1635 years.

Nos. 3 and 4. Fragments relating to Wars in Egypt and Arabia.

No. 5. Fragments of the War against Bahal, King of Tyre.

No. 6. The obverse of a large broken Tablet, giving the History of the Arabian Campaign of Assur-bani-pal.

XXXVI. Contains No. 1. Reverse of same Tablet. This Tablet completes several Passages which are imperfect on the Cylinders.

No. 2. Further Extract relating to the Recovery of the Image of Nana. See Cyl. A. Col. 7, Lines 9 to 14.

No. 3. Restoration of Worship of Sin (Moon God).

No. 4. Relating to Susian Wars.

No. 5. Capture of Ammuladin, King of Kedar; and Adiya, Queen of the Arabs.

No. 6. Susian Fragment.

No. 7. Part of a Tablet narrating the Susian Wars of Assur-bani-pal. This Fragment completes the defective Passage, Plate XXXII, Lines 47 to 60; it contains a Remarkable Account of a Vision.

XXXVII. Contains: I. Epigraphs illustrating Scenes in the Susian War.

No. 1. Submission of Rusa, King of Ararat, at Arbil.

No. 2. Urtak, Father in Law of Temin-umman, King of Susiana, wounded in battle and beheaded.

No. 3. Temin-umman, King of Susiana, wounded in battle, endeavours to escape by the aid of Parrita, his Son; both taken and beheaded.

No. 4. Temin-umman's Head exhibited.

No. 5. Temin-umman urging his Son to fight.

No. 6. Umman-igas placed on the Throne of Susiana.

No. 7. Punishment of Blasphemers. (Names blank.)

II. Miscellaneous Tablets relating to Susian Wars.

Nos. 1 and 2. Fragments of Tablets with Collection of Epigraphs relating to the Wars with Susiana and Gambul.

No. 3. Account of Wars between Tammarit, Son of Urtak, and Indabigas, his Slave.

No. 4. Letter from Umman-aldas to Assur-bani-pal.

No. 5. Fragment relating to the Flight of Elamite Princes to Assyria.

XXXVIII. Contains: I. A Tablet dedicated to Nergal, giving a brief Account of the Susian Wars of Assur-bani-pal, and the Recovery of the Image of Nana; it mentions the Conquest of Babylonia by Kudur-nakhund, an Elamite, 1635 years before Assur-bani-pal.

II. A Fragment relating to Babylonian Affairs, it mentions Kudur-nakhund; and a King named Bil-sum-izzir.

XXXIX, XL. Contain the Babylonian Text of the celebrated Trilingual Inscription of Darius at Behistun. This Inscription gives the descent of Darius from Achæmenes, the Revolt of Smerdis the Magian, and the victory of Darius over him and other Rebels.

XLI. Contains the Deed of Sale of a Field (in Babylonian writing) by Amilu-bil to Maruduk-nazir for 616 pieces of Silver; a Chariot, some Horses, an Ox, and other Animals, and Merchandise being taken instead of Money.

XLII. Contains the Transcript of this Inscription into the Assyrian Character.

XLIII. Contains the Deed of Transfer of a Field (in Babylonian writing) by order of Maruduk-iddina-akhi, King of Babylon. It is dated in the 10th year of the King's reign (cir. B.C. 1100), and is further interesting on account of the Names of the Witnesses.

PLATES

XLIV. Contains the Transcript of this Inscription into the Assyrian character.

XLV. Contains the Emblems of the Gods which accompany these Inscriptions. The stones inscribed with these two Deeds of Sale and Transfer were found near Babylon, and are now in the British Museum.

XLVI. Contains 10 Deeds of Sale, Barter and Lease, with Phœnician Dockets. (See Journal Royal Asiat. Soc., 1865, New Series, Vol. I, p. 187.)

LI–LXIV. Contain various Astronomical and Astrological Tablets and Fragments; most of them are parts of the great Chaldæan Work on Astrology which consisted of a collection of the Current Superstitions as to the import of the various Positions, Appearances, and Motions of the Heavenly Bodies, Clouds, &c. The various Fragments of this great work have now been collected, and furnish almost a complete copy. It consisted of upwards of 70 Tablets, treating of the Moon, the Sun, the Clouds; and lastly, the Stars and Planets. There were at least Two Editions and we have Fragments of several copies of each.

LI. Contains 9 Observatory Reports and 9 Astrological Tablets.

No. 1 is a Report to the King that the Vernal Equinox fell on the 6th day of the Month Nisan.

No. 2 is a Report made in another year, when the Vernal Equinox fell on the 15th day of Nisan.

No. 3 is a Report to the King that the New Moon was seen on the 29th day of the month, by Nabua, an Astronomer, at Assur (Kileh-shergat).

No. 4 is a Report from the same Astronomer on another occasion, when the New Moon was not seen on the 29th of the Month.

No. 5 is a similar Report by an Astronomer named Asha-iddin-pal; it is dated in the Eponymy of Bil-sunu.

No. 6 is a Report by the same Astronomer, that the New Moon was not seen on the 29th of the Month owing to clouds; dated in the Eponymy of Bil-harran-sadua, the last name but one in Canon 3.

No. 7 is a Report from an Astronomer named Nabu-sum-iddin, of an Eclipse of the Moon.

No. 8 is a Report of Observations of the Planets.

PLATES.

LI. Continued. No. 9 is a Report to the King by an Astronomer named Pal-Asha. It records the watching for a Solar Eclipse from the 27th to the 30th of the Month, the Eclipse did not take place as expected, and the appearance of the New Moon marked the commencement of the next month, Tammuz. This is followed by some observations of Jupiter.

I is an Extract from the first part of the great work on Astrology relating to the Moon when visible on the 30th day of the Month Kislev, copied by Nabu-akhi-irba.

II is another Extract which states that if the Moon on the 28th day of the Month is similar to its aspect on the 1st day of the Month, it is an evil omen to Syria, &c., &c.

III contains five Omens from the appearance of the Moon, copied by Nergal-etir.

IV contains other Portents from the Moon and Sun, copied by Balasi.

V contains Portents and an Observation of the Heavens by the same writer as II.

VI is an Extract containing a number of Lunar Portents.

VII is a similar Extract relating to Moon Portents.

VIII and IX are Extracts relating to the supposed influence of the Moon when surrounded by a halo, and when seen on the 1st day of the Month, &c., &c.

LII. Contains: No. 1. A small Astrological Tablet relating to the influences of Stars and Planets, written by Nabu-musezi.

No. 2. A Fragment of the 57th Tablet of the Astrological work relating to Stellar influences.

No. 3. A curious Tablet giving, Firstly, a Catalogue of 14 Tablets, which are said to contain the Auguries of the Earth; and Secondly, a List of Eleven Tablets, said to contain the Auguries of the Heavens (the 8th of these seems to be a Treatise on Comets). These are followed by Rules for the commencement of the Year; its Division into 12 Months of 30 Days each, &c., &c. A Table follows, giving the favourable and unfavourable Months for Military Operations, &c., and a similar Table for the three Divisions of the Night.

LIII. Contains: No. 1. A Tablet on the influences of the Stars and Planets.

No. 2 on the obverse has a List of Twelve Stars ruled by Merodach during the Twelve Months of the Year, and on the reverse particulars regarding the Planet Venus.

No. 3 is a Report to the King on an observation of the Moon.

LIV. Contains 4 Fragments of the Chaldæan Astrological work (2, 3, 4, and 7) and 6 small Tablets similar to those on Plate LI. The Fragments of the Astrological work all belong to the first part and relate to the influences of the Moon. The small Tablets (1, 5, 6, 8, 9, and 10) contain Extracts relating to the influence of the Sun, Moon, and Stars.

LV. Contains: No. 1. A Fragment of the great Astrological work.

No. 2. A Fragment of an Astrological Tablet of Assur-bani-pal.

No. 3 is a Fragment in which the first half of a Lunation is divided into three parts of 5 days each, called by distinctive names.

No. 4 is a Tablet of Omens for each month of the Year.

No. 5 is another Fragment of the Astrological work.

LVI. Contains: No. 1. A Fragment relating to Celestial influences.

No. 2. A Fragment of a Table relating to Omens from Dreams.

No. 3. Another Fragment relating to Omens from the Heavens.

No. 4. A Fragment relating to Feasts on certain Days of the Month.

No. 5 is a Fragment of a Tablet containing a Calendar with three intercalary Months, a second Nisan, a second Elul, and the Ve-adar; there are several other Fragments of this class.

No. 6. A Fragment of the Astrological work giving Omens from the Sun and Moon being seen at the same time, &c.

PLATES.

LVII. Contains 9 Fragments of the latter part of the Astrological work. All relate to Omens from Stars and Planets.

No. 1. Relates to the influence of various Stars.

No. 2. A similar Fragment relating to Stars and Planets.

No. 3. A similar Fragment.

No. 4. A Fragment on the influences of the Planet Venus.

No. 5. A Fragment with Lists of Stars.

No. 6. Contains 5 Lists of Heavenly bodies arranged in sevens; the last comprises the Sun, Moon, and the five Planets known to the Ancients.

No. 7. Relates to Omens from the Planet Venus, in connection with other Planets and Stars.

Nos. 8 and 9 are Stellar Fragments.

LVIII. Contains 14 similar small Tablets with Extracts similar to those in Plates LI and LIV. Predictions are given from the Sun and Moon being visible at the same time (Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 11, 12, and 13), from a halo round the Moon (No. 3), &c.; there are some good glosses in Nos. 7 and 8. Most of these Tablets belong to the 7th century B.C.

LIX. Contains 14 similar small Tablets, and one other Astrological Fragment (No. 15).

No. 1. Contains Omens from the Planet Mercury.

No. 2. Relates to the Moon and Jupiter.

No. 3. Relates to the influence of the position of Jupiter in the Heavens.

No. 4. Contains Stellar and other Portents.

No. 5. Contains Omens from Eclipses of the Moon.

No. 6. Predicts when Male Children will be born.

No. 7. Contains Moon Portents, and is curious from the number of glosses it contains.

No. 8. Relates to Clouds.

No. 9. Contains Portents from the Sun, Moon, and Stars.

No. 10. Contains Stellar Portents.

No. 11. Portents from Venus and the Moon.

No. 12. Moon Portents; 13. Stellar Portents; 14. Portents from the Sun and Jupiter.

No. 15 is an Astrological Fragment relating to Solar Eclipses.

LX, LXI. Contain part of the large Tablet belonging to a late edition of the Chaldæan Astrological work; in this edition each Tablet contained the substance of three of the ordinary Astrological Tablets; the one here printed included, when complete, Tablets 22, 23, and 24; Tablet 22 occupies the whole of Col. I and part of Col. II, obverse. It contains Portents from the Heavens. Tablet 23, which occupies part of Col. II and all Col. III, obverse, and the top of Col. I, reverse, gives further Omens from the Heavens.

Plate LXI, No. 2, is a Fragment of an Astrological Tablet; some of the Predictions on this Tablet are often quoted on the smaller Tablets.

LXII. Is a Copy of Astrological Tablet No. 22. This Tablet is the same as Tablet 23 on Plates LX and LXI; but the two copies are from different editions.

LXIII. Is a Tablet on the movements of the Planet Venus, and their influences.

LXIV. Is a Tablet of Moon Portents; it is the first Tablet of a separate series devoted to influences of the Moon. The Portents are mostly the same as those on the previous Moon-Portent Fragments; there are several other Fragments of this series.

PLATES.

LXV. Contains Fragments of two Tablets on Terrestrial Portents. The whole series of these Tablets is very extensive, numbering upwards of 100 Tablets; the Portents are derived from various Terrestrial Occurrences; those in Plate LXV, No. I, are from Human Births. No. 2 has a series of Portents from the Births of Horses, &c. The Tablet also contained, when perfect, some Astrological Portents.

LXVI–LXIX. Contain Mythological Fragments which belong to a very extensive class. The quantity indeed of Mythological matter in the British Museum, (Cuneiform Collection,) exceeds that of any other class; it consists of Lists of Gods, their Titles and Temples, Prayers, Hymns, &c.

LXVI. Contains an extensive List of Gods worshipped in the various Temples of Assyria and Babylonia.

LXVII. Contains two Fragments of a very large Mythological Tablet, many other Fragments of which are now in the British Museum; this Tablet, when complete, consisted of at least 14 Columns of Writing, and comprised the Names and Titles of all the principal Deities of the Pantheon. The reverse of No. 1 contains the continuation of the List published in Vol. II., Plate 54, No. 1, which gives the meaning of the Names and Titles of the great Gods.

LXVIII. Contains further Mythological Fragments, giving Lists of Gods, their companion Goddesses, their Titles, Offices, &c. Many of the Names are accompanied by explanatory glosses, which give the Phonetic Readings of the Names.

LXIX. Contains 5 other Mythological Fragments.

No. 1 is part of the first Tablet of a series on the Names and Titles of the Gods.

No. 2 is a Fragment of the large Pantheon Tablet, part of which is given in Plate LXVII.

No. 3 is a Fragment with Lists of Gods, &c.

Nos. 4 and 5 are Mythological Fragments with some good glosses.

LXX. Contains a number of Fragments of Syllabaries, belonging to the class of Tablets printed in Vol. II, Plates I to IV. Several of the Characters and Explanations wanting in the former Lists are supplied by this Plate.
